

“Planning the Holland Tunnel” is the first chapter from a forthcoming book on the two underwater vehicular tunnels managed by the Port Authority that connect Manhattan with New Jersey. The chapter argues that Chief Engineer Clifford Holland faced challenges that went beyond solving technical problems; indeed, the task required both communication skills and leadership.