

01:050:331

Ethnic America

The United States is no doubt the most ethnically diverse of all nations. We are the United Nations in miniature. This course will look at representative American ethnic groups through novels and movies, examining what distinguishes them from one another and, as well, what they share. It will look at the collision between the forces of assimilation on the one hand and strategies for ethnic survival on the other.