Description:
This seminar will explore the institution of marriage, the foundation of modern society. While laws and customs surrounding marriage vary from one society to another--often enormously--historically, marriage has been an effective institution. Most human beings who have lived in historical times have married, and most marriages function more or less well from the point of view of society. We will examine a particular subset of married couples, those whose marriages work unusually well or unusually poorly. These married couples are all well known historical or literary figures (with the exception of the fictional couples we will read about), and all are now deceased. The marriages are complicated and interesting, which is why I chose them.

Required Texts:
Willa Cather, The Professor’s House
Elizabeth B. Custer, Boots and Saddles: Life in Dakota with General Custer
Kimberly J. Largent, Defining Moments in the Lives of Mary Todd Lincoln and Varina Howell Davis: First Ladies of the Civil War
Marguerite Merington, editor. The Custer Story: The Life and Intimate Letters of General George A. Custer and His Wife Elizabeth
Kate Moses, Wintering: A Novel of Sylvia Plath

Class Requirements:
Strong attendance and class participation are essential. We will have brief in-class writing assignments and some short out-of-class papers as well. In-class writing cannot be made up.

The major piece of writing will be an analytical research paper of 12 pages plus an annotated bibliography.
 Prolonged absence will make it impossible to receive credit for the course.

Cell phones must be turned off in class.

 Students are expected to know and observe the university’s standards of academic integrity in all coursework. Please familiarize yourself with http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/integrity.shtml

Work must be handed in on time or an extension agreed to by the instructor. Missed assignments cannot be handed in during the last week of class.

Objectives:

By reading historical and fictional accounts of well known marriages, as well as poetry and memoirs, students will acquire an understanding of this basic and profoundly important social institution in different time periods and cultures, an understanding that should serve them practically as well as theoretically. They will consider the question of what makes a successful marriage, and how the marriages examined measure up. They will continue to develop analytical ability in reading texts and writing about them.
